

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

MOTHERS, Do You Know that Paragoric, Bismuth's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, many so-called Soothing Syrups, and most remedies for children are composed of opium or morphine?

Do You Know that opium and morphine are stupefying narcotic poisons?

Do You Know that in most countries druggists are not permitted to sell narcotics without labeling them poisons?

Do You Know that you should not permit any medicine to be given your child unless you or your physician know of what it is composed?

Do You Know that Castoria is a purely vegetable preparation, and that a list of its ingredients is published with every bottle?

Do You Know that Castoria is the prescription of the famous Dr. Samuel Pitcher. That it has been in use for nearly thirty years, and that more Castoria is now sold than of all other remedies for children combined?

Do You Know that the Patent Office Department of the United States, and of other countries, have issued exclusive right to Dr. Pitcher and his assigns to use the word "Castoria" and its formula, and that to imitate them is a state prison offense?

Do You Know that one of the reasons for granting this government protection was because Castoria had been proven to be absolutely harmless?

Do You Know that 35 average doses of Castoria are furnished for 35 cents, or one cent a dose?

Do You Know that when possessed of this perfect preparation, your children may be kept well, and that you may have unbroken rest?

Well, these things are worth knowing. They are facts.

The fac-simile signature of Dr. H. Pitcher is on every wrapper.

EVERLASTING LIFE.

REV. DR. TALMAGE ON THE REST THAT ETERNITY BRINGS.

Fame Is Vapor, Popularity Is Ephe'eral, Riches Take Wings, but the Everlasting Life Is Sure and Safe—An Elegant and Comforting Address.

BROOKLYN, Aug. 25.—Rev. Dr. Talmage, who is now in Australia on his globe-grinding tour, has selected as the subject of his sermon for today, through the press, the words, "Everlasting Life," the text being from Micah 7, 10, "Arise ye, and depart, for this is not your rest."

This was the drum beat of a prophet who wanted to arouse his people from their oppressed and sinful condition, but it may just as properly be uttered now as then. Bells by long exposure and much ringing lose their clearness of tone, but this ringing bell of the gospel strikes in as clear a tone as when it first rang on the air.

As far as I can see your great want and rest is rest. From the time we enter life a great many vexations and annoyances take after us. We may have our holidays and our seasons of recreation and quiet, but where is the man come to midlife who has found eternal rest? The fact is that God did not make this world to rest in. A ship might as well go down off Cape Hatteras as find its rest in this world.

From the way that God has strewn the thorns and hung the clouds and sharpened the tucks, from the colds that distress us, and the heats that smite us, and the pleasures that stab us, and the fevers that consume us, I know that he did not make this world as a place to linger in. God does everything successfully, and this world would be a very different world if it were intended for us to lounge in. It does right well for a few hours. Indeed it is magnificent! Nothing but infinite wisdom and goodness could have mixed this beverage of water, or hung up these brackets of stars, or trained these voices of rill and bird and ocean, so that God's word but to lift his hand, and the whole world breaks forth into orchestra. But, after all, it is only the splendors of a king's highway, over which we are to march on to eternal conquests.

No Rest.

You and I have seen men who tried to rest here. They built themselves great stores. They gathered around them the patronage of merchant princes. The voice of their bid shook the money markets. They had stock in the most successful railroads and in "safety device" great rolls of government securities. They had embonpoint, carriages, high metalled steeds, footmen, plate that confounded lords and senators who sat at their tables, tapestry on which floated the richest designs of foreign looms, splendor of canvas on the walls, exquisite of music rising among pedestals of marble, and dropping soft as light, on snow of sculpture. Here let them rest. Put back the embroidered curtain and shake up the pillow of down. Turn out the lights. It is 11 o'clock at night. Let slumber drop through the eyelids and the air float through the half opened lattice drowsy with midsummer perfume. Stand back, all care, anxiety and trouble. But no, they will not stand back. They rattle the lattice. They look under the canopy. With rough touch they startle his pulses. They cry out at 12 o'clock at night: "Awake, man! How can you sleep when you are so uncertain? What about those stocks? Hark to the tap of that firebell! It is your district! How if you should die soon? Awake, man! Think of it. Who will get your property when you are gone? What will they do with it? Wake up! Riches sometimes take wings! How if you should get poor? Wake up! Rising on one elbow, the man of fortune looks out into the darkness of the room and wipes the dampness from his forehead and says, "Alas, for all this scene of wealth and magnificence—no rest!"

I passed down a street of a city with a merchant. He knew all the finest houses on the street. He said: "There is something the matter in all these houses. In that one it is conjugal infidelity; in that one, a dissipated son; in that, a dissolute father; in that, an idiot child; in that, the prospect of bankruptcy." This world's wealth can give no permanent satisfaction. This is not your rest.

Fame Is a Vapor.

You and I have seen men try in another direction. A man says: "If I could only rise to such and such a place of renown; if I could gain that office; if I could only get the stand and have my sentiments met with one good record of hand clapping applause; if I could only write a book that would live, or make a speech that would resound!" The man turns in his favor. His name is on 10,000 lips. He is bowed to and sought after and advanced. Men drink his health at great dinners. At his fiery words the multitudes huzza. From galleries of beauty they throw garlands. From house-tops, as he passes in long procession, they shake out the national standard. Here let him rest. It is 11 o'clock at night. On pillow stuffed with a nation's praise let him lie down. Hush, all disturbance voices! In his dream let there be hoisted a throne, and across it march a coronation. Hush, hush! "Wake up!" says a rough voice. "Political sentiment is changing. How if you should lose this place of honor? The morning papers are to be full of denunciations. Harken to the execrations of those who once caressed you! By tomorrow night there will be multitudes sneering at the words which last night you expected would be universally admired. How can you sleep when everything depends upon the next turn of the great tragedy? Up, man! Off of this pillow!" The man, who had yet but from his last oration, starts up suddenly, looks out upon the night, but sees nothing except the flowers that lie on his stand, or the scroll which he read his speech, or the books from which he quoted his authorities, and goes to his desk to finish his neglected correspondence, or to pen an indignant line to some reporter, or sketch the plan for a public defense against the assaults of the people. Happy when he got his first lawyer's brief, exultant when he triumphed over his first political rival, yet, sitting on the very top of all that this world offers of praise, he exclaims, "No rest, no rest!"

From Despair to Triumph.

The very world that now upbraid will soon hiss. That world said: "What a statesman! What wonderful exposition of the constitution! A man fit for any position." That said: "Down with him! Down with him!" "Down with him!" He is an office seeker. He is a sot. He is a libertine. Away with him! And there is no peace for the man until he lays down his broken heart in the grave at Marshfield. Jeffrey thought that if he could only be dead that would be the making of him; got to be judged and cursed the day in which he was born. Alexander wanted to submerge himself with the world, and he was submerged in it and then drank himself to death because he could not stand the trouble. Burns thought he would give everything if he could win the favor of throne.

Glorious consolation! They are not dead. You cannot make me believe they are dead. They have only moved on. With more love than with which they greet us on earth, they watch us from their high place, and they watch us in our struggle for the sky. Hall, spirits blessed, now that you have passed the flood and won the crown! With weary feet we press up the shining way, until in everlasting reunion we shall meet again. Oh, won't it be grand when, our conflicts done and our partings over, we shall clasp hands and cry out, "This is heaven!"

An Old Shoe an Unsafe Safe.

An old shoe containing six diamond rings and a brooch set with diamonds, valued in all at $400, was given away, with its mate, to a poorly dressed young man a few days ago, and now the German police are looking for the man, the shoe and its contents. Mrs. Walter Leonard of Germantown was called to the door by a tramp, who asked for a pair of old shoes or some discarded men's clothing. She told the man to return later, when her husband would be home. The visitor called at the time set, and Mr. Leonard went to one of the upper rooms and took from one of the closets two pairs of trousers and two pairs of shoes and gave them to the visitor.

About a half hour later it dawned upon Mrs. Leonard that she had placed a portion of her jewelry in an old shoe belonging to her husband, and she went up stairs to ascertain if he had given the shoe and its contents. Her husband started in pursuit of the tramp, but was unable to find him. The jewelry had long been in the possession of the family. The Leonards are said to have had some experience with burglars and had adopted this plan of checking them.—Philadelphia Ledger.

The Destructive Jackdaw.

In a gentleman's park in the county of Durham, says an English writer, a number of pheasants are reared every year. The keeper, on going to feed them, was surprised to find the bodies of four of the young pheasants lying on the grass outside of the coops without heads. He made careful search for vermin, such as rats or weasels, but without effect. He left the dead pheasants for awhile, and on his return found a considerable number more disposed of in the same way. He was quite puzzled and resolved to seek assistance. Fully 20 young ones were disposed of, all in the same way. After watching a considerable time a pair of jackdaws made their appearance and were not long in commencing their raid on the young ones again. They quietly dragged them out from below the hens and pulled their heads off and carried them to a clump of trees, where they had their nest with young ones, and fed them with the heads. As soon as the keeper was satisfied that the jackdaws were the delinquents he shot them.

A Vigorous Empress.

The empress of Austria, it is said, is still able to tire out the guides at Madonna di Campiglio and other places in the southern Tyrol, where her pedestrian feats excite great astonishment and interest. She thinks nothing of a walk of 20 miles, and the rapidity of her pace makes it difficult for her attendants to keep up with her.
